Course Syllabus and Notes

Course Description

Our God is a missionary God. From Genesis to Revelation, God is working to create a community of redeemed people from every tribe, tongue and nation for his glory. This class will help you better understand God's mission (missio Dei) and the vital role his church is called to play in advancing his kingdom. We will explore cross-cultural mission from four perspectives. First, we will look at what Scripture says about the mission of God (biblical/theological perspective). Second, we will examine culture and how we can more effectively communicate the gospel cross-culturally (cultural perspective). Third, we will trace the global history of Christian mission from the first century to the twenty-first century (historical perspective). Finally, we will explore how Cru fits into the global story of missions and how we, as Cru missionaries, can participate in God's mission to gather a redeemed people from every nation for his glory (strategic perspective).

Course Requirements

This course is part of your required development as a Cru missionary. The first and most critical step is setting aside a regular weekly time in your schedule to work on the class. Find a time when you are fresh and not likely to be meeting people for appointments (e.g., the morning). Put this class into your schedule as an “appointment!” Occasionally, circumstances will arise that require you to adjust your study time, which means you will need to prioritize at some other time during the week. You will also find it beneficial to work in an undistracted environment. The majority of this course will be completed online and can be accessed at the IBS virtual website: ibsvirtual.cru.org.

For each lesson you will partake in the following activities:

- Praying for an unreached people group using Joshua Project
- Watching the corresponding video content
- Reading the required materials

In addition to your weekly activities, you will interact with your coaching group via forum posts at the end of each major section. There will also be four virtual coaching group meetings and two special projects during the course.

1. Video Lectures: Each lesson contains 60-90 minutes of lecture or other video content (broken into smaller units). The video lectures can be found online via the course site. You may also download these videos to watch on a device of your preference. The course site will have more information about downloading the video lectures.
2. Reading: Each session will include roughly 25pp of reading from the Perspectives Reader, Center Church, or other articles. Through this reading you will be exposed to leading missionary strategists and practitioners around the world. The reading assignments account for 25% of your grade. At the end of the course you will submit a report showing how much of the reading you completed.
3. Group Posts: At the end of each major section (biblical, historical, cultural, strategic) you will write a short post in a forum describing what you’ve been learning and interacting with what others have shared. The forums can be found on the course site where you will be provided further instruction.
4. Coaching Group: You will be assigned to a coaching group with eight to ten other students. Your coaching group will meet on three occasions during the course using Google hangout. You are required to participate in these coaching meetings and need to adjust your schedule accordingly. Your coach will inform you of the dates and times of these meetings. The first meeting (following Week 1) will be a time to get to know your coaching group. The second (following Week 3) will center around your Cultural Learning Experience. The final coaching meeting (following Week 5) will focus on your Missionary Biography assignment and how you’ve grown and what you’ve learned overall in the class. Each meeting will be around 90 minutes, and you will be expected to share, discuss, and interact during these times. Coaching Group meetings account for 10% of your grade and will be assessed on your attendance and participation.

5. Missionary Self-Reflection: As we engage people with the gospel across differences of ethnicity, age, and more, it is vital that we know not only whom we are engaging, but also who we are—what we bring into these cross-cultural interactions. The various aspects of who we are shape the lenses through which we see and understand the world. (For example, notice how ethnicity, sex, and social standing influence the interaction between Jesus and the Samaritan woman in John 4.) Often, we perceive some things with ease and clarity, while other things remain cloudy or even hidden from us. Knowing who we are helps us grow in awareness of our lenses and how they may potentially help or hinder our work as missionaries.

Some of you may already think about these things with great regularity. Others of you may not have needed to consider how these things shape your views and your interactions with others. Wherever you are on your journey of self-understanding, the goals for each of us in this assignment are: 1) to acknowledge the aspects in which you have deeper self-awareness, and 2) to reflect on, and deepen your understanding of, the aspects that you typically do not think about.

For this assignment, you will complete the Missionary Self-Reflection worksheet (in Week 3 of the course website). You will reflect on the various aspects of who you are, as well as how they impact your relationships with others—particularly those who differ from you in these areas. Specifically, consider your 1) ethnicity/race,¹ 2) age, 3) sex/gender,² 4) socio-economic class, and 5) at least one other category. Here is an incomplete list of other categories to consider:

- Christian tradition
- Other religious background (prior to faith in Christ)
- Culture¹
- Education level
- Family wholeness or brokenness
- Language
- Marital status
- Nationality
- Physical and mental abilities
- Sexual orientation

You will also share what you are learning about yourself with your coaching group during one of the virtual meetings. The Missionary Self-Reflection constitutes 20% of your grade and is required to pass the course. Points will be deducted for late submissions.

¹ Please consult the definitions in “Our Cultural Journey,” the Culture and Mission team’s cultural competency training.

² The focus on ethnicity/race, age, and sex/gender is based on the mission of Oneness and Diversity in Cru.

Quality of Reflection	Do your reflections go beyond superficial responses? Are they thoughtful, genuine, and thorough?	30 points
Growth in Self-Awareness	Do you identify aspects where you have greater self-awareness as well as aspects where you are growing? Do you demonstrate a willingness to explore and wrestle with areas of growth?	30 points
Answering Questions	Do your reflections incorporate responses to the questions? At minimum, do you discuss ethnicity/race, age, sex, socioeconomic class, and one other category?	30 points

- Cross-Cultural Analysis: You will select a cross-cultural missionary to study. You can either read a biography (minimum of 50pp) or interview someone who has served, or is presently serving, on the mission field in a language and/or culture that is different from his or her own. You will find a list of recommended missionary biographies at the end of the syllabus, along with suggested interview questions (see page 8; they are also on the course site in Week 5). After you finish your reading or interview, you will write 900-1000 words summarizing what you learned. Structure your paper around the following three themes: (1) an introduction which describes the historical, cultural and geographic context of the culture in which your missionary served (additional research beyond your book is welcome, though optional), as well as a brief overview of the missionary’s life and ministry; (2) positive lessons you learned from this missionary about crossing cultures effectively, and how they may be applicable to your own context, and what you might change about yourself (either cognitively or behaviorally) as a result; and (3) any additional personal or critical insights gleaned from studying the life of this missionary, including (for example): how you might disagree with them, or how you might update what they did for the modern world, or how you might revise them to be more biblical, or anything that surprised you, or any huge takeaway that was a revelation to you. As you reflect on the context of the missionary’s audience and the lessons learned by the missionary, be sure to look for and consider the ways God was already at work among this people - individually and collectively - prior to the missionary’s arrival. (Theologians call this work of God the preparatio evangelica.) Be sure to include a bibliography at the end. Further details and direction can be found on the course site (Week 5). You will also share what you learned with your coaching group during one of the virtual meetings. The Cross-Cultural Analysis constitutes 30% of your grade and is required to pass the course. Points will be deducted for late submissions.

What if I have Questions?

Your first resource for course questions is your coach. Your coach's contact information will be included in the initial enrollment email. If you still have unanswered questions regarding Intro to Mission or if you are having technical problems, please send an email lbs.Virtual@cru.org.

Recommended Missionary Biographies

Reading missionary biographies offer several benefits:

1. They inspire us to obey God's call wherever, to whomever, whenever...no matter the cost.
2. They challenge us with those who have gone before as we see their faith and flaws, while recognizing God's grace in it all.
3. They teach us what has been done well in missions history and what may need to be "undone".
4. They help us recognize and wrestle with missiological dilemmas.

Step #3: New Believers are Discipled: Acts 11:26

Acts 11:25–26 (ESV)

²⁵ So Barnabas went to Tarsus to look for Saul, ²⁶ and when he had found him, he brought him to Antioch. For a whole year they met with the church and taught a great many people. And in Antioch the disciples were first called Christians.

a. Letter to Augustine of Canterbury by Pope Gregory (July 601)

The heathen temples of these people need not be destroyed, only the idols which are to be found in them... If the temples are well built, it is a good idea to detach them from the service of the devil, and to adapt them for the worship of the true God... And since the people are accustomed, when they assemble for sacrifice, to kill an oxen in sacrifice to the devils, it seems reasonable to appoint a festival for the people by way of exchange.

The people must learn to slay their cattle not in honor of the devil, but in honor of God and for their own food...If we allow them these outward joys, they are more likely to find their way to the true inner joy... It is doubtless impossible to cut off all abuses at once from rough hearts, just as a man who sets out to climb a high mountain does not advance by leaps and bounds, but goes upward step by step and pace by pace.
